Male Narrator:

We started ASPR TRACIE two years ago with quite a mission—deliver information and resources to professionals on the front lines of healthcare preparedness.

During that time we've grown—a lot. We responded to more than two thousand two hundred requests and growing for technical assistance; worked with nearly five hundred dedicated subject matter experts to share their expertise with our audience to improve awareness and bolster knowledge; completed nearly fifty comprehensively reviewed topic collections, providing easy access to the most current, vetted, evidence-based resources, created a listserv that reaches nearly one hundred fifty thousand healthcare professionals; and provided newsletters, fact sheets, tools, and webinars on critical topics—all while supporting an ever-expanding roster of partners and stakeholders.

We're proud of these numbers, but even prouder that you've allowed us to share your best practices and become your trusted source for preparing for and responding to emergencies.

In the coming year, expect to see still more ways to be ready when disaster strikes or the unthinkable happens. More ways to make a difference in people's lives, at the times they need it most.

And for that, you deserve a big hand. Thank you.
