

Next Generation Healthcare Coalitions: Learning and Evolving from COVID-19

Webinar

December 8, 2021 ~ 2:30 PM ET

The ASPR National Healthcare Preparedness Programs (NHPP) has placed significant emphasis on response functions of healthcare coalitions (HCC) for several years. These functions are in various stages of maturation. To help HCCs integrate best practices from COVID-19 and help ASPR and NHPP leadership understand how to advance patient care coordination that aligns with the 2023-2028 Health Care Preparedness and Response Capabilities, it is necessary to understand the functions that worked, those that did not, and those that should be serve as models for future responses.

ASPR TRACIE, in collaboration with NHPP, conducted a multi-phased effort to gather and analyze information to identify successes and challenges HCCs experienced during their pandemic response. This included a survey of all HCCs to followed by a series of focus groups and a virtual key informant session with stakeholders to identify promising practices, challenges, and lessons learned for HCC operations during the COVID-19 pandemic that would be applicable to future disaster responses.

This webinar will highlight the key findings from the project, how they will help to inform future ASPR guidance, and how HCCs can use this information now to improve their future preparedness, response, and recovery efforts. The webinar will take place Wednesday, December 8, 2021 at 2:30 PM ET.
